Unexpected blessings

by Chaplain Anthony Shipe Christmas as we know it, is about a baby that was born in a manger long ago who was sent by God as a gift to a world that desperately needed a message of joy and hope.

We all get involved in the practice of gift giving. This is the art of thinking ahead, trying to determine what the person would appreciate, buying that something, wrapping it up and giving it to them to unwrap. The Christmas season offers a special opportunity to show love and concern by giving gifts to others. It is also a good time to help others in need.

What kind of gift giver are you? When a person understands what God has done for them, they are more motivated to freely give to others. Generosity is a learned art. The person who gives generously is at peace with what they have. They don't mind sharing with others. On the other hand, those who don't find joy in giving are those who can't seem to get enough for themselves.

As long as we're being theoretical, we will be generous, but when God asks what we're going to do with what we have, we run into a problem. The biggest blessings in the Bible occurred when people gave what they had left. God took care of the rest.

What about the characters of the Christmas story? How did they give to others?

1. Mary gave her body and her safety. She could have been stoned if found pregnant before marriage to Joseph.

2.Caesar Augustus gave orders for a census, divinely inspired by God for His purposes. God works in mysterious ways. If no census was taken...Mary and Joseph would not have gone to Bethlehem. There were no religious festivals going on.

3. The innkeeper gave a stable for a place to stay. We don't really know his name. But he suggested the stable down the road. He offered what he had.

4. The shepherds gave witness to what they had seen. The message of a Savior was not delivered by a king or dignitary or public official. 5. The Wise Men came from inn of festive holiday celebration, we instead find Him in the stables of our suffering and sin. Jesus tends to show up where and when we least expect Him. Apparently, His ways are not our ways (Isaiah 55:8). We see Jesus breaking expectations throughout Scripture.

Although the people expected the Messiah, the Son of David, to appear in Bethlehem (Micah 5:2), they did not expect him to appear there as if by accident. Although they expected the birth of a king, they certainly didn't expect Him to be born without dignity in a cave outside the city of David (Luke 2:4). Although they expected Him to be hailed upon His arrival, they did not expect shepherds and pagan magicians to welcome Him while the religious leaders, who knew the prophecies by heart, completely missed Him.

The Jews did not expect Him to grow up in Galilee (John 7:52), especially not in Nazareth (John 1:46), nor did they expect Him to grow up the son of a simple tradesman. When He went missing for three days as a child, not even His parents expected to find him discussing theology in the temple with the rabbis (Luke 2:46–47).

Years later, no one expected Him to suddenly appear as an itinerant rabbi with a school of disciples comprised of fishermen, tax collectors and zealots. Nor did anyone expect Him to confront the self-righteousness of pious Jews far more than the oppressive Roman occupiers. They certainly didn't expect Him to find more faith in a centurion than in all the people of Israel (Luke 7:9). The immoral Samaritan woman never expected Him to show up near her well at midday or be the first recorded person to whom He declared Himself as the Christ (John 4:25-26). The hopeless paralytic never expected Him to come to the pool and heal him (John 5:2–9). The man born blind never expected to see Him and discover that the Pharisees, for the life of them, could not (John 9:35–41). The widow of Nain never expected Him to show up during the funeral procession and raise her son (Luke 7:11–15). Mary and Martha never expected Him to not show up when Lazarus fell ill (John 11:1-3). No one expected the Messiah, the Son of David, to be convicted of blasphemy by the council and executed without dignity by the Romans outside the other city of David and no one expected him to actually rise from the dead three days later. All these things had been prophesied. Jesus was long expected. But when and how and where and why He came were all unexpected.

We tend to fill our Christmases with all sorts of expectations. But the biblical pattern teaches us that Jesus is not particularly concerned with our expectations and may ignore them altogether because He's mainly concerned with our most desperate needs. We typically do not choose our most desperate places, the places of our fears and sins, as places to encounter and worship Jesus, but He does. He knows that these are the places we most need the thrill of hope.

This is why I expect to find Jesus in the sober celebrations of

dear friends who, due to an aggressive cancer, may be sharing their last Christmas together.

This is why I expect to find Him at the hospital bedside of a precious little boy, where his parents have kept faithful vigil since the traumatic brain injury three months ago.

This is why I expect to find Him in heartbroken homes and in the heartbroken churches. Heartbroken people gather whose Christmas worship will be full of unexpected disappointment and tears.

This is why I expect to find Him in the places of my own groaning, my sinful stumbling, persistent weaknesses, perplexing questions and situations that I am not wise enough to think my way through.

Jesus came into the world at a desperate time in a desperate way. It wasn't the way people expected Him to come. It wasn't for the reasons they expected Him to come. He did not come to meet their expectations but to love them in the ways they most desperately needed.

This might be the way He comes to you this Christmas: to love you in the ways you most need. That may, in fact, be why some of your expectations are not met: they aren't what you really need.

So, look for Him in unexpected places. It could be the place you are most likely to really adore Him.

I wish all of you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

distant lands to give gifts. The gifts that they brought had great importance and meaning.

What about God? What did He give us? The answer is an unexpected Savior. Do I mean that the world didn't know that He was coming? No.

I mean that we meet an unexpected Savior in the times that we need Him the most. Literally, you and I don't know we need Him until we encounter a need that is greater than we can deal with. I find it very interesting that so many of us have insurmountable issues in our lives brewing these last couple of years. What in the world is going on? I will tell you exactly what is going on in the world...we have an...unexpected Savior.

Busch Hall Sunday Night Presents Wednesday Concert Series

by Ken and Sandy Langell

We have some exciting shows coming up in the next few weeks! Since this is the last issue of The TR Times for the year, I want to give you a short introduction to the artists that will be appearing here for Busch Hall Sunday Night.

Dec. 22 is the "Tin Pan Alley Christmas Show." John Timpanelli and the Tin Pan Alley Troupe will be singing some of your holiday favorites. John has long been popular with our audiences and he is also appearing here with his son in February as part of the Wednesday Concert Series.

Dec. 29 is not quite New Year's Eve, but close enough! We will be celebrating with Jason Ensor, Cliff Richards and their band, presenting "A Tribute to the Righteous Brothers."

During the hiatus of 2020, local Tampa talent Clint Shepherd decided to act on an idea he's had for years: He wanted to steer clear of boring, background style, run-of-the-mill cover band music constantly being played all over Florida, so he put together something uniquely special. A Righteous Brothers Tribute Concert was exactly what he'd dreamed of. He began searching for the best musicians and singing partner required to see his vision come true. What he found was a fabulous tenor. Jason Ensor, to fill the huge shoes of the legendary Bobby Hatfield and a group of musicians who understood the appreciation of paying homage to one of America's best singing duos in history.

JOHN TIMPANELLI

Jan. 5 "Kier! Comedy Rock." You'll come for the rock impressions and leave laughing your head off. Great standup and spot-on musical impressions make this show rock.

Over 30 years Kier has done it all, and done it all over the world, including entertaining the troops in Europe, Asia and the Persian Gulf. He has worked with such greats as Reba McEntire, Oprah Winfrey, Ellen DeGeneres, Daniel Tosh, Darius Rucker, Ronnie Milsap and many others, including appearances on the Bob & Tom Show.

Kier's spot-on impressions include Sting, Springsteen, Dave Matthews, U2, Sinatra, Roy Orbison, Bob Dylan, Beatles, Waylon & Willie, Tom Petty, Prince, Barry White, Nirvana, Pearl Jam, Neil Young, Macklemore and many others. Plus his world-famous history of rock guitar riffs!

The Byrne Brothers, from Donegal, Ireland, are a multiaward-winning family band currently taking the Irish American scene by storm!

Their achievements include a massive social media presence, winning the Young Artist Academy© Award for Outstanding Music Ensemble and being named Rising Stars of the Year by American Celtic Radio Listeners for their album "Living the Dream."

They are also one of the biggest Irish Trad Supergroups on Facebook, YouTube, Instagram and TikTok with over 70,000 followers and 32 million views on their music videos.

They moved to America in 2018 to perform at Walt Disney World where they became the youngest ever cast members in the history of Disney and have since toured extensively across 47 U.S. states.

They are all County champion musicians and Ulster champion Irish dancers. The band consists of: Luca on accordion; Finn on banjo, mandolin and guitar; Dempsey on bodhran and whistle and their father Tommy on uilleann pipes, fiddle, guitar and grade I bagpipe.

Christmas then and now

From The TR Times archives by Jean Helker

Holidays have always been times of family gatherings. As a young couple, before we had children, my husband and I traveled to our parents' homes to spend time with them on holidays like Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter. Later, after our own children arrived, our parents and children all came to us for quality time during these holidays.

As time has gone on, most of us have grown children with families of their own. Now the roles are reversed again. Our own parents have either passed on into the Lord's presence, or can no longer travel to us or manage those large parties we used to have. Now we either go to our children's homes to spend the holidays or use the telephone and postman to hear their voices and send our gifts.

Many of you will remember a time when we did not have computers, Facebook or cell phones in our homes. Our telephone was a line we shared with another family and it was limited to 40 calls a month. It is hard to imagine that we were able to keep up with family happenings with such limited resources. But we found a way.

As a child I remember that on Sunday afternoons our family would climb into the car and take a drive. We would stop at relatives' homes along the way, spending a half hour or an hour with each of the grandparents, then on to the homes of various uncles, aunts and cousins. At each home we were offered a meal, or a dessert, or a cool drink, depending on the time of day. We sat and talked, filling each other in on the family happenings. There were always promises of reunions and correspondence that in some cases never materialized, but the good intentions were always there.

It was a simpler time. We were not rushed as we listened to grandpa telling us stories of his own childhood. We played with cousins we had not seen for a year and listened to those who seemed so old to us youngsters as they talked about holidays and reunions long past. As we parted from each home, there were hugs and sometimes tears as we knew the next year we would be missing some of the faces we loved so dearly.

I am now at the opposite end of the continuum, knowing that many years have passed by and that many of those we loved have gone to their reward. Now each year as I check my address book it seems that I am crossing off another name. But I still recall those early years when we had boundless energy and enthusiasm and had no thoughts of ever growing old.

Can you believe it is only a few more days until Christmas. All my life I have heard that the older you get the faster time goes. I must really be getting old; I'm not sure where this year went. At the beginning of the year, I had a long list of things I was going to accomplish. Guess I will use the same list for the New Year in 2025. Time just flies when you are having fun at Travelers Rest.

Unfortunately, the rental sheds and some vehicles in our storage lot suffered water damage from Milton when the water rose overnight. This unexpected damage forced a number of residents to dispose of many personal items, some that had been down there for a number of years.

We have three rental storage areas: l. Back fence slot. 2. Vehicle (Car, RV, Trailer, Boat) storage slot and 3. Sheds. (Q0050) All storage in those three areas is at your own risk.

Under Policy Q0010 you must be a current leaseholder, sublessee or mobile homeowner to request a slot. A lessee can rent one (1) from each of the three (3) areas in storage. No storage of commercial vehicles is permitted without Board of Directors approval. Each vehicle must have a current license plate and be registered at the office. Approved seasonal renters may request a slot based on availability and management approval. I believe we currently have a waiting list for the storage area and it is based on a first-come waiting list. You are not allowed to store anything outside of shed (Q0020). Storage fees for all rentals is payable by Sept. 30 or upon the signing of a new rental agreement. Management intends to remove all items from the storage area that are not properly stored at the end of this season and dispose of them.

Lessees are responsible for maintaining their storage slot in a neat, clean and safe condition. All vehicles should be kept clean and free from accumulated dirt, debris, foliage, algae stains and discoloration. Only custom-made fitted covers are permitted. Because they can be a high wind safety issue they must be secured and properly fastened to the object covered (Q0030).

Renters may move their vehicle themselves but it is recommended that you have someone from maintenance assist in order to prevent damage to other vehicles. For a fee, Travelers Rest can move RVs, either storage to site or site to site or site to storage. Please contact the office for scheduling and the fee amount (Q0040).

Over the last several years we have heard about squatters moving into unoccupied homes and the problem the owners have in getting them out. Apparently squatting is moving into several other areas of our life. "Seat squatters" on planes is the latest travel trend. These seat squatters try to rob seats that are assigned to others, forcing the flight attendant to get involved in removing them from an assigned seat. Another popular squatting trick is to find a seat that is not assigned and just sit down in it and protest when asked to move. Buy an economy ticket and try to score by getting in a business or first-class seat or if you are in the back move several rows up. Living in this century is certainly proving to be very different than the one most of us grew up in. Wonder what the next new battle will be.

RAY HILL

by Ray Hill with Richard Kushman

Park security is on the menu this week. Ray explained the cameras that watch over our park 24/7may very well prevent and possibly solve any transgression should one occur. The system can also provide an entertaining glimpse into occasional trash dumping in jammies.

There are 10 park-owned cameras and one is a special Plate Camera which has higher resolution allowing excellent detail when zooming to identify a vehicle license plate from any distance. Every vehicle entering or leaving the park is recorded for identification. The other nine cameras deliver exterior views of the park entrance, office, Busch Hall, Citrus, Golf View, Busch Hall parking and the Pickle Ball Courts. They operate 24 hours a day and are linked to a cloud service that stores one week of surveillance. Good to mention here, if you suspect a breach has occurred worthy of investigation do alert the office quickly. The system creates a time graph indicating motion points allowing a quick search when trying to pinpoint an event. This means if you see something happen check the time or if your golf cart has disappeared have a good estimate as to when that might have occurred, but of course make sure your partner is not on the course playing jammy golf. Ray and assistants have the ability to access the camera views from their phones and any Internetconnected computer.

The Post Office has a separate interior system with three cameras maintained by the park. The post-box lobby, interior lobby and work area are under observation. A record of the past 36 hours is stored on a local drive keeping a continuous watch for mail pickup in jammies or any real bad stuff.

Another separate security system contracted with State Alarm Company will automatically send an alert in case of fire in Busch Hall and any break-in and fire at the office. The new ID-dooraccess system now in use is also providing another step increasing security for all residents. Ray did mention any thought of a gate system for the park is just not possible. Travelers Rest Blvd. is a county road which means it cannot the name of the longest mountain range on the planet?

by Margaret Emmetts

If asked to name the longest mountain range, you might respond with any of the five most logical answers: Rockies, Appalachians, Alps, Andes or Himalayas. Unfortunately, you would be wrong.

The longest mountain range on the planet is the Mid-Atlantic Ridge. Although this range is about 10,000 miles long, most people have never heard of it. The reason for this is that the ridge is mostly under water and not visible.

The Mid-Atlantic Ridge extends from the southern tip of Africa to the Arctic Ocean. It is a spot where the North American and Eurasian tectonic plates meet. It is a divergent area meaning that the two plates are moving apart anywhere from 1 to 20 centimeters per year. This is the rate at which your fingernails grow. As the plates move apart, magma from underground pushes up to form mountains. These mountains, although mostly unseen, in some places rise some three kilometers from the ocean floor. The ridge does come to the surface in a few areas: Iceland, the Azores and a few islands such as Ascension, St. Helena and Tristan de Conha Geologists find this area most interesting. The Earth's magnetic poles flip over long periods of time. Since magma contains iron it contains magnetic properties. As the magma surfaces and hardens, its magnetic field reflects the direction of Earth's magnetic field at that time. By studying the direction of the magnetic field preserved in the magma deposited, geologists can determine at what time in history the Earth's magnetic fields flipped.

If you are planning a trip to Europe, remember that it is getting farther away each year.

A gift you never have to return

by Chaplain Anthony Shipe

Christmas morning is nearly upon us. The incarnation. The birth of Jesus. The day God became a man. But have you ever noticed that "our view" of that amazing event is always vertical? We are focused, as we should be, on God coming down to us--or, perhaps more accurately, God appearing among us.

This is the scene we are allowed to see and it is amazing. So amazing that it will take forever to truly grasp it. Yet there is another scene, one we have not been able to see. A scene that we can only imagine. That is what I'd like for you to do with me. Imagine the incredible moment when Jesus left His proper place in Heaven. A place only known to Him, where His glory dwells in unapproachable light. Have you ever wondered about that moment?

Let's ponder for a moment during the start of the Christmas season. Our lives have been busy. It seems that some things never get done. We have overwhelming feelings. The holidays arrive and we have to somehow incorporate the grueling tasks of decorating, gift buying and visiting with relatives. We just celebrated Thanksgiving. We have shared with others how thankful we are for what God has done in our lives. The retailers have been wasting no time promoting the commercial sense of Christmas. Sometimes we just get worn out. The holidays can stressful. Let me ask you, what is your attitude?

CHAPLAIN ANTHONY SHIPE

Having the attitude of Christ consider the words from Philippians 2: 1-11.

A decision was made in eternity past in the perfect mind of God. The Son left the side of the Father and became a man. We know what happened on earth after that, but what happened in Heaven? What was the reaction of the Father as His Son voluntarily undertook this so- called "suicide rescue mission" to earth? What emotions passed between them? What did Jesus feel as time drew near to leave Heaven and His Father's side and arrive on earth as a "lowly human being?" This is something that we have rarely been told about.

Verse 6 and 7 says "that He who being the very nature of God...made Himself nothing.' Nothing? How could God make Himself nothing? Instead of that you never have to return.

creating everything out of nothing, He who holds everything together would pour everything into nothing. With every inch He descended to earth, allowed His glory to leak away and His arrival on earth found him empty. Jesus' relationship with His Father would never be the same.

Was there silence in Heaven when the Son left? Did all of Heaven mourn His departure? Or was there confident praise and adoration among the hosts of Heaven while angels sang His praises on earth? What was the mood? Human wisdom cannot answer. Humanity would now be able to touch and see God in human flesh. What was the attitude of Jesus towards man?

What is your attitude? The real Christmas spirit is a deep-seated lingering joy in knowing that the story is true. Do you have the attitude of Christ? Are you as concerned about those around us that don't believe and want nothing to do with it? Remove the trees, the lights, the poinsettias, the candles, the decorations and the story is still there.

Have you accepted the Gift God sent to earth wrapped and placed in a manager? If you have not, I hope that you will consider taking a walk down to the manager and seeing what unconditional love looks like. Reach out and touch the fingers of the one that gave His life for yours. That Gift is especially for you. Something Like many of you, I split my year between my home in New Jersey and here at TR. My lament regards how I have to deal with mail delivery.

In the fall I have to change where my mail is delivered from New Jersey to Florida. I went to my local post office, explained what I needed to do and asked their advice. Their response was to fill out a "mail forwarding form." They advised that it would take a couple of weeks for this change to take effect. Apparently the postal computer system works at the speed of a galloping snail.

In the spring I again have to change the location for my mail delivery. I went to the Dade City Post Office where I was told to again fill out a "mail forwarding form.'

While this process sounds simple the fact remains that it seldom works. I have had years where my mail bounced back and forth between the two states, never reaching my hands.

This year I filled out the "mail forwarding form" in New Jersey in mid-October allowing a couple of weeks for my arrival at TR. When no mail arrived for several weeks I was not alarmed as this was expected. However, when over a month passed and no mail arrived, including my tax bill and credit card bills, I became concerned.

I contacted my New Jersey Post Office to determine what the problem was, and I was amazed to learn that they have been carefully holding my mail for over a month. Why? Seems somewhere along the line the post office decided that New Jersey was my permanent

Submitted by Joe Colao and your TR First Responders

Calling 911 can be a frustrating experience especially when you are stressed, and the dispatcher on the other end of the line seems to be asking question after question while you are in a near panic.

There are three critical questions that the 911 dispatcher needs to have answered before your emergency can be handled efficiently.

1. What is the phone number that you are calling from? This question is obvious, so that your call can be returned if it becomes dropped.

2. What is the location of your emergency? Of course the necessary aid needs to know your location to help you.

3. What is the nature of your emergency? This information is necessary to determine the kind of help that you may require. Is your emergency a law enforcement, fire or medical event?

When these three questions are answered, help is on the way. The dispatcher will likely ask additional questions as to the severity of the emergency. Lets say for example you have initiated a 911 call regarding a medical emergency. The dispatcher might ask questions about the patient's past pertinent medical history, age, perhaps the medications taken or prescribed or the condition of the patient - color, breathing, pain level, bleeding, location of pain, etc. You can see how frustrating these questions will sound to you as you might be in a state of panic or deeply stressed and not knowing that help is on the way.

These follow-up questions help the dispatcher and the incoming first responders better help you in your emergency.

As an example, if your friend, neighbor or loved one is experiencing chest pain, the dispatcher may ask if the person has been prescribed nitroglycerine or aspirin or has cardiac history, and the dispatcher may ask if the person is alert and conscience.

This information helps the first responders to be better prepared for what they might expect when they arrive on the scene.

We hope that you find this information useful in the event that you require 911 assistance.

This is a once-upon-a-time story about the pitfalls of promising someone a special treat. This could be a fairy tale except it happened to me this week.

A friend was going to celebrate her 95th birthday on Tuesday and since she really enjoys my butter tarts I said I would bring some to a coffee get-together at our condo.

frozen tart shells and my freezer had no space to store them, so I bought the shells on Monday morning and planned to make tarts at the noon hour while my husband Bill and I had our lunch. I had assembled all the necessary ingredients, measuring spoons, bowls, etc. the night before so I was convinced that in under half an hour I could produce 24 delicious butter tarts. Timing was important because we both had to leave by 1 p.m. I set out the two dozen frozen shells on a couple of cookie sheets to thaw and turned Butter tarts anyone?

by Jane Harrold

Problem one was that I use on the oven. This was a good plan.

Problem two was that Bill was helping me make our lunch of leftover stew which was cooking on top of the stove. He put our lunch dinner rolls in the warm oven to heat. This was also a good plan.

Everything was on schedule. We had an early lunch and Bill left for his appointment. I had 45 minutes to do my baking. I popped the empty tart shells into the oven for 6 minutes to set the pastry. When the timer rang I took the shells from the oven and put them on top of the stove. They looked a little paler than usual but I was using a different brand of frozen pastry so I ignored this clue. Problems one and two were about to create a butter tart situation.

After carefully filling the shells - 6 tarts with no raisins and 18 with raisins – I put my oven mitts on and put the tarts back in to finish baking. As I was closing the oven door I glanced at the digital display to check the temperature and the screen was blank. Apparently when my helper served the stew he had turned off the stove element and the oven.

Somehow, he had not noticed the 24 frozen tart shells lined up waiting to be baked. Since the oven had been on, it was nice and warm so I did not notice that it had been turned off. My reputation as a butter tart maker was in serious jeopardy. I needed Plan B and time was running out.

Butter tarts out of oven. Oven cranked up an extra 50 degrees. Wait for oven to get to temperature. Put butter tarts back in and wait for the filling to boil. Keep muttering "cook faster, faster" to the tarts and "tick slower, slower" to the clock. Estimated time for getting tarts out of oven is five minutes before I have to leave.

When the tarts look ready, I quickly put the pans up on the stove top and rush out the door. They look a little different but I tell myself that all will be fine once they cool. Maybe that part was wishful thinking.

Fast forward a couple of hours. I am back and the tarts are ready to be put into a container. Each tart is in a separate foil container so I decide to take the foil off the tarts that do not have raisins so that it will be easier for people to choose a plain tart or one with raisins. However, when I touch the pastry on the first tart, some filling runs out onto my hand and drips through my fingers. The tarts are very runny instead of perfectly gooey. These are going to be very messy to eat. I decide to leave the foil on all the tarts and lay a toothpick across the plain ones to identify them. I tell myself that the tarts with raisins will be firmer. I am very good at wishful thinking.

Day Two...Tuesday

Bill leaves early for a meeting and I am on my own to take the tarts to the party. For serving the butter tarts I organize paper plates, spoons and napkins. Since I have several other things to carry I load our grocery cart so that I can wheel everything safely to the elevator and down to the main floor lounge for the birthday party. I pack large items around the container of tarts to keep it level and protect it from falling. I gently roll the cart over our raised doorway while keeping my hip firmly planted against our heavy door to keep it open. I get on and off the elevator and make a couple of turns. I am congratulating myself on how smoothly everything is going when one of the front wheels stops rolling. The cart bumps to a halt and the whole container of my precious tarts slides onto its side. Little rivulets of syrup start leaking out of several tarts. Not only is the filling runny but also the foil holders are now a sticky mess. This is a butter tart disaster.

Luckily like all good fairy tales this one has a happy ending. The birthday partygoers eat the tarts with extreme care, spoons and plenty of napkins. They laugh at my butter tart story and share a few tales of their own baking mishaps. Sharing laughter with friends is definitely my idea of living happily ever after.

P.S. I have promised to make tarts again, but next time I will keep Bill away from the oven.

Recipe for 12 tarts. In a bowl mix together (I use a wooden spoon) ¹/₄ cup butter softened $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar $\frac{1}{2}$ cup corn syrup 1/4 tsp. salt 1 tsp. vanilla 1 egg slightly beaten Optional $\frac{1}{2}$ cup raisins For frozen pastry shells, thaw for 5-10 minutes on counter. Arrange empty shells on a baking sheet. Bake empty shells at 375 degrees for 5-6 minutes. Fill shells and return to oven for another 6-8 minutes. Pastry edge should look browned and filling should have boiled hard. Cool before storing.

Hello friends and neighbors. There seems to be a lot of interest in our Cybertruck with so many strange looks on your faces as we pass you by. I know that many of you have questions about our odd-looking vehicle, so Joan and I would love to do our best to answer your questions and give you straight-forward information to clear the air and separate fact from fiction.

It is a pickup truck. It is made by Tesla in Austin, Tex. and is the vehicle most made in the U.S. It is 100 percent all electric. It has a 340-mile range. It weighs 6,800 pounds. It is extremely fast! It can tow 11,000 pounds and has a 2,500-pound payload capacity. The tonneau has a 350 pound capacity. It can wade through 36 inches of water. It can power your trailer or your home as it has several 120 volt 20 amp outlets, as well as a 220 volt 50 amp outlet. It is made of stainless steel and is the same material that SpaceX uses in its Starship that will go to the Moon and Mars. It has Full Self-Driving (Supervised) and it parks itself. If we tell it to go to Costco it will take us there and park. It is truly an amazing vehicle.

If you would like to know more about our Tesla Cybertruck, come armed with your questions and come take a look inside and out. We will have it available for you to see parked near the Fire Station on Saturday, Dec. 21 at 11 a.m. We look forward to seeing you and answering as many of your questions as possible and sharing our experiences of towing our 34 ft. tri-axle Airstream from New York to TR.

What a wonderful, fun-filled afternoon we had on Dec. 11! The creativity of our TR family is remarkable! The annual Christmas Golf Cart Parade was a fabulous display of the Christmas spirit. Thank you to everyone who participated, and to our judges who had the tough job of picking a winner. Congratulations to Paula Snyder our 2024 Christmas Golf Cart Winner, of 2 tickets to the Fire/Rescue 33 Pulled Pork Dinner on Feb. 15. The second half of the afternoon was spent indulging in an array of splendid home-baked cookies donated by, once again, our TR family. A huge thank you to Linda Spencer, Laurie Zentmyer and all their busy elves who baked, set out the cookies and had to taste many to pick the winner of the Golden Spatula award! Congratulations to Amy Peebles, who baked the winning cookies and now has a Golden Spatula among her baking supplies.

The TR Times

TR looks truly amazing with all the festive Christmas trees and sparkling lights gracing our park from the entrance to the storage area. Thanks to Betty Teichert and her multitude of elves for bringing Christmas to life. The day to undecorate is set for Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 9 a.m., meeting at Busch Hall. Many hands make for light work, so please mark this date on the calendar to come out and give a hand. Thank you, in advance.

With the ringing in of the new year, comes our TR activities swinging into full gear! Your TR Directory is a hands-on guide to browse for the activities you would like to join! We are truly blessed with incredibly talented residents, who kindly share their time and expertise with our TR family. Please thank your leaders for taking the time to make our park amazing. Every year we offer an Activity Showcase for the upcoming season. This year's event will be on Wednesday, Jan.15, at Busch Hall from 9 to 11 a.m. Please plan to attend to familiarize yourself with all the activities TR has to offer.

Rock Painting has resumed

by Marcia Hatfield

We are having some lovely December days to begin Rock Painting. You can choose your own design or try the Design of the Day. The first design will be an angel in honor of Christmas. You do not need to bring anything since we have all the supplies; just bring a happy heart and a willing spirit.

The concept is to share our talents and spread some love around the park. We do this by painting two rocks at a time because you need to let the paint dry between colors. You start one rock and set it aside to dry and begin on rock number two. When you finish, you will have one rock to take home if you like and one to leave around the park for someone to find. They will take a photo of it and then relocate it as your rock begins its journey around the park.

We paint in the Jeri Miller Activity Building between the Fire Station and the back door of the Hobby House. Our time is 10:30 a.m. to noon on Thursdays. Contact Marcia Hatfield at 614-946-4411, email at mahatfield@live.com or lot 02-05 in RV

by Jeffrey J. Duquette

Ballroom Dancing lessons will begin on Monday, Jan. 13 at 7 p.m. in Busch Hall. Taught by Jeff Duquette, an experienced ballroom dancer, you'll learn how to dance at weddings and social events. No prior dancing is necessary, since everything will be explained and you can quickly learn what to do. This is our fifth year and you can ask past students how they enjoyed the classes.

This season will feature an additional chance to go over what was taught on Monday evenings. On Wednesdays at 10 a.m. in Citrus East, Jeff will do drills and go over how to do the steps. This is a review class, not a repeat of Monday's lesson.

Dancing is a basic social skill. But everyone has to learn how to do it. You will be at ease and have fun in the class. Imagine the next wedding where you glide along to the music amazing all of your friends.

The format of the lessons is to teach the same dance for two weeks in a row – foxtrot, then the romantic rumba, swing and waltz. Other requested dances will be covered. Right now we have nightclub 2-step in the lineup, a you.

Join us for a fun night of music and dancing

by Diana Hill

Dec. 14 was a great night of dancing and fun. It was kind of bittersweet because it may be the last time our favorite DJ Mo is here rocking the house. We all wish Mo (Marilyn) and Gina happy travels and we hope they know they will sadly be missed.

Mark your calendars and keep this TR Times since it's the last issue for 2024!

Tuesday, Dec. 31, New Years Eve, 8 p.m. to midnight in Busch Hall. TR Dance Night is stepping in to have a NYE Dance since the dinner/dance was cancelled. No cover charge, however we do accept donations to cover costs for future events. Remember it is a casual BYO night. Bring your own beverages, snacks, table decor and NYE party favors if you like. We are a group of folks that just want to get out and dance, but not have to leave the park. No skill-trust me, I have none—or partner—um, again none here-are needed. Last time at our TR Dance Night we all had a blast. Single, married, guys, gals, short, tall, plump or thin, we were all just being silly and having a ball. All types of music is available so bring your requests. Come on out y'all and have some fun. Please drink responsibly and stick around to do the TR thing by putting away tables and setting up chairs for church. We can do this v'all and have a good time right here at our own lovely Busch Hall.

tained by Jesse Derringer. Suggested donation $10 this time, but he is worth a bit extra. We plan to sell wristbands prior to the event so look for information and flyers later. A TR Rally had him here last spring and 50+ TR folks came to see him. It sparked the whole TR Dance Night idea. He plays a couple of instruments and can sing just about anything you ask for from gospel to rock to country, so bring your requests. He is amazing. This is going to be a great date night. Still BYO beverages, snacks and table decor if you like, so you can be fancy or not. Setup will start at 6:30 p.m. with cleanup afterwards

Also, ask to join our Facebook page "TR Dance Night FL' email me at TRDanceNight@gmail.com to keep up-to-date on future events. See y'all there and we'll rock on!

Quilling on a Budget resumes in January

by Pat Daubenmier

Quilling on a Budget will restart for the season on Thursday, Jan. 9 at 1:15 p.m. in Citrus West. Quilling is an ancient art of rolling thin strips of paper to create designs or pictures. We use the skill to create greeting cards that will surely impress your friends and family. Although no special equipment is needed and what you do need is provided, many have chosen to purchase some tools that make the creations more easily fashioned. A project is presented and the rest of the time slot, approximately two hours, is for you to finish your work. Cost of card is usually $1 to cover the cost of the materials used. Classes this year will be limited to 20 and sign-up prior to class is appreciated so that kits can be assembled for distribution. To sign up text Pat at 734-646-1296.

by Marlene and Harold Hughes

Dining with Friends will start again on Saturday, Jan. 11 at 5 p.m. in Busch Hall. Your hosts for the season are Harold and Marlene Hughes at 865-617-7092. We were excited to see the great turnout that we had last year. We hope to have the same great turnout this year. We met old friends and made new ones as we shared food, fellowship and some great music. There is not much that I like to do more than cook and share food with folks.

The highlight of all the dinners has been the great music. We are so blessed to have such great musicians here at TR and they are so willing to share their God-given talents. We already have the music scheduled for January and are working on the others.

For our first dinner, we would like to request the dish you bring be good old American food. If this doesn't work for you, just bring a dish to share. Everything else is furnished except your beverage. This is the first dinner for the season, so we are really looking forward to seeing folks. There is a sign-up sheet on the Activities Bulletin Board in Busch Hall for Saturday night.

Flea Market news

by Amy Peebles

Due to the expansion of the kitchen, we have had to revise the Flea-Market map. You may find that your usual table from years past has been relocated. So to ensure that you are pleased with your location, refer to the current map when signing up for a table.

Just a reminder, table and chair set up is from 7:15 to 7:45 a.m. To allow our volunteers to complete this job as quickly as possible, we kindly request that vendors not set up before 7:45 a.m. This will give the volunteers the time and space they need to get the job done for you. Once the setup is finished, we will be happy to assist you if you need help finding your table. The Flea Market hours are from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Thank you for your support of the Flea Market and we look forward to seeing you in January.

DAN AND SHARON ZILE by Sharon Gilbert Zile, Volunteer TR Tour Director

Merry Christmas to all TR travelers! It has been exciting to see the Starlite Majesty Luncheon Cruise, scheduled for Jan. 23, fill so briskly with 56 paid reservations and a wait list of 7. Thanks for making those reservations so promptly and do call me if you find that you are unable to go. There is someone on the wait list who will be eager to reimburse you, take your seat on the bus, enjoy the views along the Gulf Coast and savor your lunch!

Securing your reservation for TR Travel trips is made by mailing your check, payable to Small World Tours, to Sharon Zile at #2540. Your name is placed on the GO List as I receive payment. If you need to cancel, I am usually able to return your check or ask the next person on the wait list to reimburse you for the reservation. It is likely that even if you need to cancel, you will not lose money. In some situations, the person cancelling has generously gifted the day trip to another TR resident.

Having guests staying with you for a few days just when a TR Travel trip is scheduled? You may make a reservation for your guests to accompany you on the day trip. What a very nice way for you to entertain your visiting family or friend!

Currently, I am accepting reservations for the Al Capone Dinner & Show scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 18. A new venue for this show is located in Kissimmee and is made more enjoyable by the new dramatic lighting and sound system. The show is a sequel to a very successful comedy run and the Chicago performance was a hoot! Al Capone, the famous Chicago mob boss of the Prohibition era and his gangster cronies, will engage the audience in some comedic banter and perhaps join you at your table. If you wish, get into a Speakeasy mood by dressing in flashy period costumes. This show will have you talking the talk, walking the walk and singing the songs of the 1920s. Bus transportation from Busch Hall departs at 3:30 p.m. and your reservation includes a dinner buffet, unlimited beverages (soda, juice, iced tea, hot tea and coffee as well as beer, wine, rum and vodka), and VIP theater admission. On each TR Travel trip, driver and meal gratuities are included in the ticket price. Cost is $119 pp with refunds not guaranteed after Feb. 4. The bus returns to Busch Hall at 11 p.m. Promotion flyers are available on the TR Travel Bulletin Board on Busch Hall's north wall. Gather a fun group of TR friends-this show is a blast! Our March 10-14 bus trip to Biloxi and New Orleans is sure to be a fascinating experience. While NOLA is famous for Mardi Gras festivities, our TR Travel visit will be a week after Mardi Gras. We'll see many of the Mardi Gras parade floats at Mardi Gras World where the floats are created, tour a sugar cane plantation house and gardens,

After a 15-year successful run, Capone's is proud to present a sequel where you will enjoy a comedy filled show with comedic banter between you, characters & our mobsters, but one thing is for sure, you are gonna have a blast! Don't be surprised if a gangster joins you for dinner. So get ready to step back in time to the prohibition era 1930 gangland Chicago, speakeasies, mobsters, dames and Al Capone. Flashy period costumes, new dramatic lighting & sound system make this show a hit! It will have you talking the talk, walking the walk and singing the songs. Activity Level 1

by Amy Peebles

The TR Library is a labor of love for its volunteers all year long. Open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. As we wave goodbye to our snowbird friends and many of our library volunteers in the spring, a small group of yearlong residents settle in for a quieter summer season

Consisting of Kay Blunda, Marilyn Long, Diane Phillips and Amy Peebles, the usual library duties get done such as processing new books, re-shelving returns, taking retired books to the Hugh Embry Library in Dade City for their book sales, keeping an eye on the shelves to ensure that every author is in the correct alphabetical order and that the shelves are neat and tidy, and ensuring that the Recommended Book Shelves are fully stocked with books and replacements are added if one has been borrowed.

At her northern home, Library Chair Mary Kosbab is only a phone call away and we frequently keep in touch bouncing new ideas off each other with plans to discuss when all volunteers are back together in January. With funds collected from library Flea Market sales and generosity of donated monies from the Party Planners and Marilyn and Darold Long, Mary is always on the lookout for books that she thinks our TR readers will enjoy. This summer she focused on large-print books that have proven to be very popular. A time or two a large box of books have arrived at Marilyn Long's home for Marilyn to inspect and then pass on to the library for processing.

The slower season gives our smaller group of volunteers a chance to do things we may not have time for during the busy regular season like remaking the bulletin boards, adding the current year's colored slips to books that are missing them, assessing supplies which may need to be replenished, keeping the recommended card boxes updated and in alphabetical order by author so we can easily pull the card when we add the book to the shelf, and if we have multiple copies of a book, we pull it aside and keep one for backup. Another volunteer upon her return takes any extra copies to a book store in Dade City where they purchase them and the profit from those sales goes into our coffers for new books, supplies or any other needs the library may have

As the summer wanes and we look forward to residents returning in the fall, you should find the library just as it was when you left TR.

We have our first official meeting in January. Each meeting is proceeded by lunch at the Snack Shack, if volunteers so choose, and then we get down to business. Mary has an agenda for each meeting that we work through and after each meeting she sends out meeting minutes of our discussions. We work as a team at these meetings, but otherwise work independently, volunteers either dropping in to the library to work when convenient or signing up for a designated weekly shift.

We welcome all new members and look forward to having you join us. Lunch begins at 12:30 p.m. and the meeting starts at 1 p.m. at the Snack Shack Pavilion. Please contact Chair Mary Kosbab or Co-Chair Kay Blunda or any library volunteer with any questions or for more information.

Marilyn Long has been a long-time, silent volunteer at the TR Library. When we needed an overseer of the Christian Fiction collection, she stepped forward and has quietly monitored it for many years assisted by Beanie Wise. At the end of last season, we decided to combine the Christian Fiction and Western books with the general fiction collection. It turns out that this was a fortuitous decision because we are losing the person who has so faithfully and ardently watched over this collection since the beginning. Besides monitoring the Christian Fiction section, Marilyn has been one of the summer volunteers who keeps the library going when the staff dwindles to five or six. These people cover the work of a staff of over 20 during the season.

Thank you

Marilyn

Last season and over the summer Marilyn has been my "go-to" person to read new large-print books and help me decide which series to purchase. She also read many of our older, large-print books to help us know which ones to weed out.

Garden News

by Nancy McDowell

Hoe! Hoe! Hoe! 'Tis the season for merry making and gift giving. Have a gardener in your life for whom you need a gift idea? How about a hoe as a gift or another tool for the garden shed? There are plenty of useful garden tools from which to choose. Even if you do not have a gardener to buy for, these yard tools work for just about anyone, green thumb or all thumbs.

There are trimmers, clippers, pruners, spades, shovels, scoops, rakes, forks, shears, barrels, buckets, pots, hoses, sprinklers, sprayers, gloves, hats and shoes. The list goes on.

A good garden tool can be an essential aid. The old adage, the right tool for the job, works for gardening, too. Also knowing when to use or not use a tool is helpful to keep gardens flourishing. Looking around the TR Garden, we should not take the pruning shears to the azaleas until after they bloom. We should not set the trimmers on the milkweed until our spring so they can provide an essential habitat for local and migrating butterflies.

Our volunteers use all the tools in our sheds to get the jobs done to keep the TR Garden so special. Lucky for us they know what to use when and how. My personal favorite is the spade. It digs, scrapes and cuts, almost an all around handy-tool. I wonder what Martha Stewart's favorite garden tool is. My guess is a garden kneeler and seat. Like us, she is older now, too.

Where do you get a good tool? Good question. When I lived outside of Philadelphia, one of my favorite garden shops was Waterloo Gardens (WG). It no longer exists, but it was a family-owned business that stocked plants, garden tools, accessories and gifts. For me, it was a one-stop shop for all things gardening. I have not found a replacement for WG here in Florida, but Canterbury Farms Wholesale Nursery in Hudson comes close. There are so many great plants for sale there. Here's a tip, try not to go in the middle of summer because most everything is outdoors and it can be very hot walking around their lots. Shopping small businesses is very good for business so if you are in the market, maybe stop into a local garden shop or hardware store. Otherwise, a big-box store or on line might have something you are looking for.

Come take a stroll through the TR Garden to see how we have used the tools of our trade. Happy holidays to all. Look for us at the Activities Showcase on Wednesday, Jan. 15 in Busch Hall at 9 a.m.

Pets on Parade

by Judy Leister

I have often felt that many of our pets enter our lives for a reason, and in the case of little Kobe, I think that is very true. Diana and Dan Dean had been escaping the New York winters and coming to TR for 15 seasons. Sadly Dan was diagnosed with cancer, and during that battle he talked to their daughter Pam about Diana's future when he was gone. He wanted to make sure there was a dog in Diana's life. After things had settled down following Dan's passing, Diana called the AKC headquarters in New York for some information on dogs. They suggested a Shih Tzu and recommended a breeder.

The TR Times

Kobe then entered the scene. Shih Tzus are non-shedding, friendly, fast learners and lots of fun. Of course puppyhood can always bring some challenges, first of which was whining. Kobe voiced his opinion a bit too much, but Diana introduced the word "quiet" and in 45 minutes he had that all figured out. His learning progressed. A trainer came to the house for private lessons. Kobe learned one of the most valuable commands – stay! Diana spends a lot of time working in her yard and can't watch Kobe's every move, so she puts him on the porch and tells him to stay and he doesn't leave his perch. As a reward when Diana is done gardening, Kobe gets to go out in the yard and chase all those leaves blowing off the giant live oak trees.

Travelers Rest Resort

Kobe is so sweet and raises the spirit of everyone he is around. He is even a certified Emotional Support Dog and he sure lives up to that title.

At some point I am certain Kobe has had a long conversation with a Labrador Retriever. He loves playing in the water, but his signature move is retrieving, especially one of his many balls. Toss the ball and in an instant he's giving it right back to you for another throw. At 8 years old, he still has the energy level and drive of a puppy. My husband and I have had several labs in the past and they loved having a ball thrown over and over. Kobe is as good at retrieving as any lab I've ever seen. Go get 'em Kobe!

Birding Activity

by Tom Butler

If you ask me, birding could be an Olympic sport. It takes essential preparation, steady patience and a willingness to stay still in a world that is otherwise speeding ahead. The payoff is magnificent. Birds are interesting creatures, both beautiful and fascinating.

Take the other morning. Up at 7 a.m., I made my coffee and headed out to our back patio. I waited only a few moments before spotting the first bird at one of my feeders. Before taking too many sips, I had counted 21 different varieties having breakfast in my back yard.

Full disclosure, I have 13 bird feeders on my property with more next door belonging to my birdwatching neighbor Beannie Wise. Together we do everything possible to make the winter months a bird-watching wonderland. Trying to keep the squirrels from the feeders is a full-time sport in itself. Let me be clear. I do not dislike them, I simply frown on them stealing the seeds I meticulously select for my flying friends. When the need arises, I simply use a well-placed baffle or cut off a low-lying branch to prevent them from flying to the feeders and stealing their lunch.

types. Cardinals and blue jays are prevalent this time of year. Also dominant are a variety of warblers. With over 800 species of birds in North America alone, it is thrilling to try to determine the one you have spotted. The equipment list for birding is simple. A good pair of binoculars is essential and a field guide to help recognize the species rounds out the short list. The more you watch for them, the easier it becomes to identify. Once you have experience with visual clues, you can use bird songs to help with classification. Scouring the area on a slow walk is a fun way to spot birds. During the season bird enthusiasts meet on Tuesday mornings at 8 a.m. at the Post Office porch for a stroll to spot and identify birds hanging out here at TR. I also greatly enjoy sitting on the swing behind my 5th wheel nearly anytime of the day to see who is visiting. My 21 friends from a few days ago? Among them, I spotted a Baltimore oriole, pine warbler, yellow-throated warbler, bluebird, Carolina chickadee, tufted titmouse and a hairy woodpecker. The most strikingly beautiful bird I have seen here is the male painted bunting. Take a moment to Google a picture of one. You won't believe the beauty. A summer tanager is one of the birds typically harder to spot, and they have been arriving here from the cold north in their classic migration pattern along with many other of their feathered friends.

TR's Annual Christmas Golf Cart Parade

by Margaret Emmetts

TR's Annual Christmas Golf Cart Parade took place on Wednesday, Dec. 11 with 26 carts participating. The parade was led by our fire engine and Santa and our crash cart brought up the rear. As is customary, the parade circled through the Village, Cabana and RV South sections of the park. Spectators lined the parade route.

Following the parade, over 100 participants and spectators alike gathered in Busch Hall for cocoa and a huge selection of delicious homemade cookies.

Linda Spencer led the cookie making by personally baking five dozen cookies. Dozens more were donated by various TR residents.

TR musicians provided both background music and music for caroling. A rendition of "Frosty" was performed by our guest soloist, Starla, the Schencke's Boston terrier.

During the festivities the following awards were presented: Golden Spatula for best cookie went to Amy Peebles. The overall winner for the golf carts went to Paula Snyder. Barb Swartz, Laurie Zentmyer and Donna Probes received the award for best Spirit. Donna and Neil Moore's cart was deemed the most original while Terry and Molly Flores had the best winter theme. Chuck and Michelle Wart's cart presented the best Christmas theme.

Thanks to Kathy Kushman and Carole Young for serving as cart judges for the event.

Wizard was planned for January, but...

by Jackie Thackery

We are playing Wizard on Tuesday evenings at 6:30 p.m. in Busch Hall. This is a Canadian card game and your goal is to correctly bid how many tricks you will take in each hand. We record this as voiced before playing and success earns you 20 points and +10 more points for each trick bid; however, any trick over or under your bid costs -10 points for each, i.e. 3 too many or too few = -30 points. Tough challenge.

I always say you must be able to laugh at yourself as there is much laughing or cheerful frustration. Let everyone laugh with you. Come out and enjoy this game and the fellowship.

TR plays Chinese Mah Jong

by Marcia Hatfield

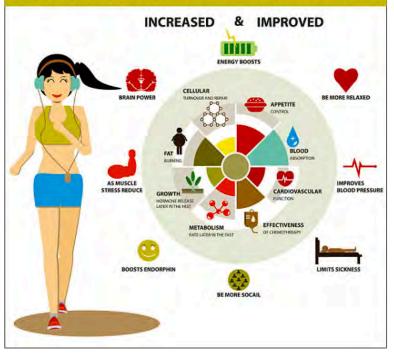

Chinese Mah Jong has begun for the 2024-25 season. On Monday, Dec. 9 we had only three players and we played 12 games. Deb May won three times, Rose Taggart had four wins and Marcia Hatfield scored five times. Marcia said she had to get her wins in quickly because she will be distracted beginning January when she will start teaching new people.

Three also played on Friday, Dec. 13. Rose won four times, Marcia won once and Bev McWilliams won once. This was the first time Bev ever played and she was thrilled to be a first-time winner. She is new to the park and we gave her a warm Chinese welcome.

Everyone is invited to give the Easy Style of Chinese Mah Jong a try. It's much like the card game, Rummy. You just collect three of a kind or three in sequence with a pair to round out your hand. New players usually win on their first day. We teach every Monday and Friday.

Join us at Citrus West on Mondays and Fridays from noon to 2 p.m. Contact Marcia at 614-946-4411, by email at mahatfield-@live.com or at lot 02-05 in RV South.

(Shared by granddaughter Jaycee Lee Smith): Nobody likes sharing sad news, especially when the news is a loved one passing. My grandmother, Viola Lee, passed away Nov. 17. She has had such a huge impact in so many lives and I'm so grateful to have had her in mine. From anything from teaching me how to drive a horsedrawn wagon to her sought after opinion about wedding colors.

I will miss her every day. Not to be cliche, but Heaven sure did gain another angel that morning. Please keep my family in your prayers.

(Shared by daughter Stephanie Evans): Mom, thank you for teaching me so much about life and love. I will forever be thankful that I had you as my Mom. You taught me incredible things and encouraged me to be the best person I can be. We will keep an eye on Dad until it is his time to join you. Know Mom, that wherever this world takes me, a part of you will always travel with me.

Looking Back

by Nan Lance

30 Years Ago - 1995

- Money down the drain. During the summer months our sanitary sewer system pumps 15,000 gallons per day. Last summer the pumping volume rose to the critical level of 80,000 gallons. It was determined that some of the runoff of the 39 inch rainfall had penetrated the 20-year-old sewage pipes.
- Rollerblades are hazardous to TR's health. TR loves kids, but not when they rollerblade on the tennis courts, shuffleboard courts and around Busch Hall.
- What is a kumquat? The kumquat came to America from China in the late 1800s. It is grown in two varieties: sweet (round) and sour (oval). In China a kumquat in the house is thought to bring good luck.

20 Years Ago - 2005

- Alert: damage-causing Asian insect found in TR. This insect was brought here from Bangkok, Thailand. First found in Miami, it infested King-Sago Palms throughout the city. John Hodge found them at TR.
- The manatees are back. Cool weather brings the manatees back to the Tampa Electric Company's Manatees Viewing Center on Big Bend Road. A 2004 inventory found 3,100 manatees in Florida waters making them an endangered species. They weigh 1,200 lbs.
- Interaction with medications. What you eat with your medication can have a detrimental effect on how that medication works in the body. This includes grapefruit, caffeine, licorice, vitamin K foods and alcohol.
